LORD SAINSBURY OF TURVILLE

He was appointed Minister of Science and Innovation from July 1998 until November 2006, and had responsibility for the Office of Science and Technology, Innovation, Space, the Bioscience and Chemical Industries and the Patent Office.

He is an Honorary Fellow of King’s College Cambridge and in 2003 received, on behalf of the Sainsbury family, the Andrew Carnegie medal for philanthropy.

He is the author of two Fabian pamphlets “Government and Industry: A New Partnership” and “Science and Innovation Policies in a Global Economy” and is co-author with Christopher Smallwood of “Wealth Creation and Jobs” published by the Public Policy Centre. In 2007 he produced for the Government a review of the Government’s science and innovation policies, “The Race to the Top”.